Gov. Sulzer Reported to Have Called on His Press

NO STEP TO RELEASE HIM

Little Hope Entertained for Sulzer's Ally in View of a Precedent.

ALBANY, Sept. 19.—Sheriff Wallace Peaseley, into whose custody James C. Garrison was delivered by Sergeant-at-arms Lee F. Betts of the State Assembly at 2:30 o'clock this morning after he had been adjudged in contempt by the Assembly, applied the rigid discipline of the Albany county pententiary to Garrison to-day.

Garrison was permitted to sleep in one of the Sheriff's rooms after he reached the prison, but was told this afternoon that he would be placed in a cell to-night and get the same treatment as any of the other prisoners. Newspaper men who went to the penitentiary to see him were permitted a few minutes talk with him about his plans.

"I should worry about the Assembly putting me in jail," said Garrison, while

He has been one of the most active and daring of the Governor's press agents and in his newspaper capacity has made public several vitriolic statements reflecting upon the members of the Legislature and others in political life

Garrison Will Fight.

Carrison is determined to make a desper-ate fight to test the validity of the Assembly's ate fight to test the validity of the Assembly's commitment confining him to jail. His counsel, John T. McDonough of Albany, spent several hours going over his case with him this afternoon.

Even counsel for Gov. Sulzer admitted that Garrison had a poor case in the face of precedents. The case is identical with that of William McDonald, a clerk in the office of the Commissioner of Public Works in New York city, who during a legislative investigation of the affairs of the department in 1884, refused to testify before the Senate Cities Committee.

The Court of Appeals passed upon the

The Court of Appeals passed upon the case of McDonald and in an opinion written by Judge Papello, in which all the other Judges concurred, it was pointed out that there was no question about the authority or power of either branch of the Legislature to imprison a person whom it adjudges in contempt "for disorderly conduct in the immediate view and presence of the House and directly tending to interrupt the necessary of the second large."

House and directly tending to interrupt the proceedings."

In the McDonald case the Senate brought the contumacious witness before the bar of the Senate after he had refused to testify before the Citles Committee and had left the room where the investigation was being conducted without permission of the committee. Arraigned before the bar of the House McDonald, as in the case of Garrison, had an opportunity to purge himself of contempt, but insisted on having the aid and advice of counsel before he would undertake to answer any questions.

Whether Suizer out of loyalty to Garrison, who was jailed while fighting for the Governor's cause and under the Governor nor his advisers would say. It is presumed, however, that the only action to test the validity of the Assembly's order directing his imprisonment will be one started by Judge McDonough, Garrison's counsel.

Sergeant-at-Arms Betts has received from Sheriff Peaseley the return to the Assembly commitment, which reads: would undertake to answer any questions.

McDonald's Commitment.

McDonald was committed on February 27, 1884, to the care of Sheriff William Keeler of Albany county to be detained at the Albany county jail until he agreed to answer the questions put to him by the he final adjournment on of the Legislature, te or "until the final adj the present session of the Legislatuniess sooner discharged by order of writ of habeas corpus was obtained

On the court of the General Term this order of the lower court was reversed and McDon-ald was discharged from the custody of the Sheriff. When the case was decided by the Court of Appeals in favor of the Senate the Legislature had adjourned.

"I have reached the conclusion," says the opinion of Judge Papello of the Court d that of the Court of Over and Termine affirmed, except so far as it remands the relator to the custody of the Sheriff, the term of his imprisonment having ended with the session of the Legislature."

Valentine C. Taylor, legal adviser to Gov. Sulzer, intimated that Mr. Sulzer would not institute proceedings seeking the release of Garrison. The counsel for the Governor looked up the case and found that it would be a difficult task to undo what the Assembly had done at the early when Emil Kovarik Godchild, a friend of Gov. Bulser and a companion of Garri-son, called up the Governor early this morning and informed him that Garrison had been "jugged" the Governor replied: "Tell Mr. Garrison that just as soon as he is free to come and see me."

Garry Benson, keeper of the Tub, where the out of town newspaper men stay, called up the penitentiary this morning before s o'clock to talk to Garrison

Garry politely asked.

"He left word when he retired this morning," apologetically answered the jailer, "not to distrub him until 11 o'clock. You better call him later."

Gerrison was apparently undisturbed while talking to his friends later.

The Recorder's Opinion.

Recorder Sheldon Frost, before whom Sheriff Peaseley laid the Garrison case, advised him that the Assembly had the power to direct the imprisonment of Garrison. The warrant for the arrest stated that Garrison should be held in "close custedy at the penitentiary." For that reason the Sheriff directed the penitentiary custodian to place Garrison in a cell, denying him the comforts of the hospital ward in which an effort was made to have him placed.

Judge John T. McDonough, for whom is Judge John T. McDenough, for whom Carrison sent to represent him in an effort to get him out of the predicament, said after his conference that he was considering the advisability of making application for a writ of habeas corpus. "But there is no hurry," added Judge McDenough.

"If an application is made," centinued the Judge, "it will be before a Supremé Court Justice. Both Justices Chester and Rudd are out of town to-day, but the latter is expected to-morrow. We may do somewhise them."

Garrison's experience in the Assembly last night did not have the effect of curbing divided and a majority are irreconcilable to any sort of compromise.

A few hundred of the moderates results are all the learned of the moderates of Railhis holdness. In a statement made at the penitentiary he declared he would seek his release through the courts and would "find out if the Assembly is justified in jailing me when I offered to appear before the Judiciary Committee if I could be assisted But they knew an investigation would

Which May Settle Their

Trouble.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

This has been accepted by the Liverpathy with the Dublin men. The extremists, however, still insist on a national strike and have sent a delegation to Lon-

Inem to-day.

It seems that many of the strikers at Birmingham are on the fence and it is partly on this fact that there is a hope of a settlement before the week's end.
